Two hundred years of respect for natural resources

Sweden's Agricultural Societies have over 200 years experience of taking care of nature's resources. Our operation is characterised by strong commitment and extensive expertise. In addition to expertise, we carry with us the conviction that urban and rural areas must work together in their efforts to ensure truly sustainable development.

Consulting in different fields

In the area of environmental knowledge we work with issues in different fields and offer training, seminars and individual consultation. Moreover, we can contribute our solid practical experience of environmental work. Examples of services we offer:

- Environmental education programmes
- Environmental management systems
- Environmental studies
- Environmental audits
- Environmental impact analyses (EIAs)
- Quality assurance
- Licence applications in accordance with the Swedish Environmental Code
- Quality assurance of organic residues from the community

- Organic production – advice
- Husbandry planning for the natural and cultural environment
- Water and environmental protection projects
- Energy advice
- Plant nutrition advice
- Survey of woodland key habitats
- Establishment of wetlands and dams
- Alternative wastewater and sewage systems

For whom – and by whom?

In the Environment knowledge area, our primary customers include agriculture and rural development companies, local authorities, county administrative boards and other public sector organisations.

Most of our environmental consultants have a university degree. We are agriculture graduates, agrologists, biologists, environmental engineers and health and environmental protection inspectors. We primarily work with assignments from public authorities, companies and individuals, but also various projects.
